

Healing Hands: Students' Compassionate Outreach for Ailing Children

Students of St. Vincent College conducted the "Healing Hands" outreach program, aiming to support children suffering from different ailments. The initiative provided a nurturing environment where students engaged with the children, offering companionship, fun activities, and emotional support. Through interactive sessions and creative workshops, participants experienced moments of joy and empowerment. The program not only uplifted the spirits of the children but also fostered empathy and compassion among the student volunteers. By extending a helping hand to those in need, the college community demonstrated its commitment to making a positive impact on the lives of vulnerable children
